What's New In Screen Calipers?

The Screen Calipers is the official application to measure the distance from your screen. It's an application that calculates the distances between each side of a specific area or point on your desktop and the two edges of the screen. It can be used to move text to a specific position on the screen, to add a shadow where it's supposed to be, and so on. The program offers several skins, including most graphic and function keys of a computer. When the distance is measured, the application will display it in the appropriate unit on the screen. Besides the distance calculation, Screen Calipers has a specific function to measure the distance between any chosen point and the screen edges. When it comes to positioning, the application features a magnifying glass that can be used to analyze the current position of any point on the screen. You don't need to buy anything else to use Screen Calipers. The only paid function of this application is the use of the unit. What's new in this version: • New skins Screen Calipers has several skins you can use to style your application.
